I knew what he meant very well. His first step, when we returned again to the kitchen, was to go up to old Pearce, and apologise gravely and formally for the disturbance he had caused. His next was to turn to me saying: "There can be no furturbance he had caused. His next was to turn to me saying: "There can be no further reason for my remaining; I will wish send with the reason for my remaining; I will wish senday senda you good-morning, hoping that your painful impressions may wear off."

His words came in strangely with the thought in my own mind. Was it, after all, a dream, a delusion of my own, created by the lad's story and the desolate house? Had that midnight visit existed in my own fancy going mad? With that horrible idea now first striking me, I stood silent until Mr. Archer again repeated his farewell. Then I roused myself. "Good-bye," I said. "After all, you may be right, and I wrong .-And my voice in a new tone echoed white the room. Reading, Dec. 28th, 1862. -14-3w. The general feeling seemed to be, that the "day of Freedom had dawned at length", Positively for One Night Only! and that 'twas " God's appointed day," The evening previous, religious meetings were held by the two societies in which remarks appropriate to the close of the year and to the great event which was so soon to be inaugurated, were offered. One of the brethren had a watch meeting as it is termed at his house in imitation of the Methodists. VENTILATION .- The neglect of proper or any ventilation in our public halls when meetings are held there, has been adverted to before, but as the evil still exists to a great extent, as must be apparent to those who attend any meetings, attention is again called to the matter, with the hope that those whose business it is to see to it, will do so without waiting for some persons to faint or become sick from the foul air which a crowded audience in a small hall will always engender and which they are very often compelled to

READING.

For the Middlesex Journal. Circumstances beyond my control have for several weeks past deprived me of the pleasure of communicating with the Journal, but pen in hand once again I will attempt to in dite a few items.

Tuesday morning revealed the fact that me rogue had entered the store of William Parker, during Monday night, and abstracted therefrom some tifteen dollars in postage stamps and specie. Some cigars were taken stamps and specie. Some cigars were taken and a box of honey appears to have been duly attended to, traces of blood having been left therefore indicating that his fingers were cut in the operation.

Since writing the above I learn that the rogue has been caught. He took the first train from Boston for Lawrence, purchasing his ticket in the cars and paying specie for it. Sheriff Lovejoy was soon on his track and has succeeded in capturing the misguided youth who it appears has for sorie time past been residing in this willage. He states that the rogue has been caught. He states that me to feveres, either Billous Alaudice, Dyspensia, Billous attacks, Head ache, &c. In the treatment of Fevers, either Billous, Yellow, Typhoid. been residing in this village. He states that the entered the store during the evening, and lay concealed until the rightful occupants had left, and after having secured all he cared about, finding a key in the drawer that fitted the front door, deliberately opened it and walked out, so his story goes. His real name I have not learned. Since living here he has been under an assumed name. The stamps and money have for the most part been recovered.

Rev. Norris Day is still laboring at the Bethesda church, this being the ninth week of the series I believe. Meetings every evening and frequently in the afternoon.

The inimitable Dodge is to appear again at Lyceum Hall next Tuesday evening. I would advise every one who has a little spare change RADWAY'S PILLS to step in and see as well as hear for himself, It is money well laid out occasionally to indulge in a little mirth rationally enjoyed, especially when provoked by a man of sound e like Mr. D. I will quarantes it will for the time being at least drive off the blues and draw one's mind from contemplating the scenes of the battle field. It really does one good to thake his sides now and then, and a man that can witness one of Dodge's concerts and not feel his sides tremble had better take to to the woods and spend his days

In Yellow, Typhoid, and Billous Fevers, in Erysipelas, Small Pox, pargation is highly essential; but to administer a dose of Drastic Pills, the irritation they would produce, and the relaxation and depletion that would follow, would be likely to prove fatal. In these cases, a mild soothing and gently stimulating laxative, that will purge and heal, sootho and strengthen, like RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS, is required. The cause of so many deaths in these diseases is owing to the want of a purgative like IADWAY'S PILLS, that will purge, without depleting or interfering with the functions or other severelons. WM. GRAY, ESQ.: Dear Sir.—Two months ago my head was almost entirely bald, and the little hair I had was all grey and falling out fast, unit
I feared I should lose all. I commenced using your HAIR RESTOIRATIVE, and it immediately stopped the hair falling off, and soon restored the color, and after using two bothes growth of the same color it was in early manhood. I take great pleasure in recommending your Hair

Peter Lawson, Esq.—Dear Sir: It is with great pleasure that I inform you that II have used your Nerrous Curative for the cure of Chilbhainsand with entire success. I have been sorely afflicted with them for many years, and never found any permanent relief till I applied your Nerrous Curative, according to directions. I also had a very severe attack of Pleurisy, and I applied your Nervous Curative, and it gave me immediate relief. I consider it one of the best remedies I ever used; and recommend it most chefully to the afflicted. Yours truly,

The Rebuke. The infant is sleeping.

He prattles no more; The mother is weeping, Afflicted and sore; The children are crying, For "baby is dead;" The father is sighing For one little head.

There is grief in the palace,
And mourning and woe;
All, save little Ahee,
Their sorrow do show.
Her fair cheeks are tearless;
Her blue eyes are clear;
And trusting and fearless
She stands by the bier.

Her voice is unbroken,
As, lifting her head,
She turns to the living,
From one that is dead:
Dear mother you told us
That God was on high,
And his arms would enfuld

And, father, I heard you Your child was an angel, In raiment of white: why all this weeping, is sorrow and pain?

With the voice of a prophet,
The look of a seer,
Her words of rebuking
Enchain'd every ear;
The sobs came no longer,
The cyes knew a balm,
The parents were stronger The parents were stronger, The children were calm.

Neath the shade of a willow They laid him to rest,
The sod for his pillow,
A tose on his breast;
And they learn'd from his going
One lesson of worth,— There are angels in heaven, And angels on earth.

In all cases where pain is falt, the READY RE-LIEF should be applied. Taken internally—a tea-spoonful to half a tumbler of water—it will care acidity of the stomach, and promote diges-tion; it is a pleasant and healthy stimulant.

tion; it is a pleasant and healthy stimulant.

TO THOSE WHO DO THINK,

We say that RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is too telegant and powerful medicine known to world. This is not boasting; try it, if you is skeptical, and be convened. It combines in composition the properties of a diffusive stimula an Anti-septic, a mild but effective Astringe and a direct power over the nerves, neither a cotic nor anothine, that relieves pain, in a man printe English language exactly to express its tion. The French call it Soulagement. So my for its internal administration. When applied ternally, it will be found a most powerful countirritant, instantly reddening the surface to whit is applied, and withdrawing the blood from so neighboring part, where it may be congested.

Sec. Stanton will allow.

When is the army of the Potomac to give some other account of themselves than "All quiet on the Potomac." Our army in the West have done nobly of late and the generals seem to be live ones. But our success there is no doubt in part justly attributable to its distance from Washington, as red tape is not quite long enough to reach them. Had Burnside been as far from Washington as Roselive for the Potomac, and the properties of the Potomac, and the Potomac, and the Potomac, and the Potomac, and the Potomac of the Pot crans has been in his operations all the evidence there would be that a rebel army ever existed in Virginia, would be the mounds that would everywhere cover their dead bodies. The Court Martials, after having consumed so much time, and excited so much interest of late, examining into the conduct of various generals at Washington, are, it is assumed, about drawing to a close, and it is highly probable all of the arraigned will come out at come to a different conclusion. Just think of it-West Pointers sitting in judgment on those graduating from the same institution.

are born in these troublous times.

The following communication has been handed to me by an exteemed friend, with the request that I would forward it to the Journal for publication or rather such portions of it as I might deem most proper, but it is written in such beautiful simplicity of style and vivid language, so much more to the purpose than anything I could possibly write, I must respectfully decline to alter a word or a letter of it. It is a beautiful tribute to a little

In this case it seems proper that there should be something more than a simple announcement of her death. She was a child of great promise, unusually bright and interesting. Although so young, she had won the affect ions of all who knew her. At home she was by the Music Committee. MISS HOUSTON of Boston, is expected to sing.

The day she was taken sick she attended school all day, and in the after-she attended school all day attended the scholars; after returning from school she complained of a severe pain in her throat, a Physician was soon called, and he pronounced it a severe case of Diphtheria. She grew worse rapidly and although she suffered great pain, still that same patient spirit was manifested through her whole sickness; not a murmur escaped her lips. She was perfectly conscious to the last. Two days before she died, although her throat was very painful, she commenced singing some of her little song, she loved to sing so well at schoolcommencing "I'm a pilgrim, and I'm a stranger," and "I'm going home to die no more," apparently thinking that she was soon going to that heavenly home on high. After an illness of ten days she sank peacefully to rest in the bosom of Him who said "Suffer little not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

of pleasure to ourselves, and gratitude to you, that I take my pen to inform you of the recevery of my two and a half years past my wife has been unable to attend to her family and household duties, on account of intense suffering from the most agonizing of all pains arising from Neuralgia on the seintienerve. The consequent loss of sleep and debility, rendered her recovery almost hopeless, and no remedy proved efficacious, atthough many of them had been prescribed by the most eminent physicians in the state. On the recommendation of J. Short,
conductor on the Boston and Lowell Raliroad, a bottle of your "Nervous Curative" was forwarded
in the state. On the recommendation of J. Short,
conductor on the Boston and Lowell Raliroad, a bottle of your "Nervous Curative" was forwarded
a few months since; and, applied during one of the few months since; and, applied during one of the severest attacks of the disease, to our astonishment it afforded almost immediate relief, and has restored her from suffering, so that she now enjoys sweet and refreshing sleep. We have used two bottles offit, and still, continue to use it, as we find it strengthens her nerves every day. She now en-with it vry often, and when it did *ffect me it was very severe, entirely prostrating me, and laying me up from my daily work. I had tried many remedies, which did no good whatever, until I tried your "Neuralgie and Hheumatic Curative, and Kerve Tonie." By gargling my throat often with it, and applying it warm outside, as you directed, its application entirely cured me in two nights and had the slightest trouble with it since. I do most heartly recommend it to all persons troubled with "Dlphtheria or Sore Throat," knowing that I shall be received their thanks for so doing. I loping you will be rewarded for your great and valuable discovery, I am truly and gratefully yours, I am truly and gratefully yours,

The Snow at Fredericksburg.

Drift over the slopes of the sunrise land,
Oh wonderful, wonderful snow!
Oh! pure as the breast of a virgin saint,
Drift tet, derly, soft and slow!
Over the slopes of the sunrise land,
And into the haunted dells
Of the forest of pine, where the sobbing winds
Are tuning their memory bells!

And over those yellow slopes,
And over those yellow slopes,
That seem but the work of the cleaving plow,
But cover so many hopes!
They are many indeed, and straightly made,
Not shapen with loving care;
But the souls let out, and the broken blades,
May never be counted here!

Fall over those lonely hero graves, Fall over those ionely hero graves,
Oh delicate dropping snow!
Like the blessing of God's unfaltering love
On the warrior heads below!
Like the tender sigh of a mother's soul
As she waiteth and watcheth for One
Who will never come bach from the sunrise land

When this terrible war is done.

That crimson the Eastern sands!

Fall in thy virgin tenderness,
Oh delicate snow, and cover
The graves of our heroes, sanctified
Husband and son and lover!
Drift tenderly over those yellow slopes,
And mellow our deep distress,
And put us in mind of the sbriven souls
And their mantles of righteousness!

LYCEUM .- The exercise for next Monday The Army.—We are ever glad to receive evening will be a debate upon the following B The Army.—We are ever glad to receive my direct intelligence from soldiers of former acquaintance, especially those who were townsmen and neighbors. A letter recently received from G. H. W., of Co. E. 16th Reg. Mass Vol., now near Camp Falmouth, Va. speaks of some abuses which evidently ought to deremedied, but how, under the present state of affairs a change can be brought about is a question. The policy of sending inexperienced officers from home to fill vacancies in the army, instead of promoting tried and the army, instead of promoting tried and faithful men from those regiments that have been long in the service, we supposed had been mostly abandoned in Massachusetts.

This Regiment has seen hard service, Laving been in most of the battles fought in that section of the country. It is certainly compliments to the officer, and provided to their legitimate purpose, not only for the prosperity of the Lyceum but for the benefit of all concerned.

The offices, certainly, are not desirable, especially that of the presiding officer, and provided the association respecting them. It is desirable, that any further wrangling in regard to the officers should be avoided, and the meetings be devoted to their legitimate purpose, not only for the prosperity of the Lyceum but for the benefit of all concerned.

The officers creatinly, are not desirable, especially that of the presiding officer, and plimentary to their discipline and bravery that they have so long occupied a position in the advance. The complaint of drunken officers in the army is not new, but unless it comes to be among the things that were, we may despair of gaining the conquest over our enemies. Intemperance has very much retarded the progress of our nation, and may vert never the other of the contending parties. The matter however seems to have been decided in an equitable manner, and there the members should leave it and work together. the progress of our nation, and may yet prove our ruin unless banished from places of power and trust. Hardly less improper would it be to officer the army with the investor.

When I have said my quiet say,
Whim I have sung my little song,
How aweet, methought, shall die the day
The valley and the hill along!

I thought beside the water's flow I thought beside the water's flow
Awaile to lie beneath the leaves;
I thought in autumn's barvest glow
To rest my head upon the sheaves.
But ib! methinks the day is brief
And cloudy; flower, nor fruit, nor leaf
I bring, and yer, accepted, free,
And blest my Lord, I come to Thee!

What matter now for promise lost
'Th ough blast of spring or summer rain
What matter now for purpose crossed.
For broken hopes and wasted pains?
What if the olive little yields,
What if he vine be blasted? Thine proudest, the most aristocratic and the meanest of all the rebel states, has drank deep from a full cup of wrath. She is torn limb from limb, and much of the residue has been trampled under foot of armies, swept and turned upside down. Some three-fourth of her soil is in the hands of the national government. The western portion—some forty eight counties—refised to follow the eastern in rebellion. Several of her easternmost counties also, as well as all her sea-coast and the mouths of all her rivers, are under the Federal power. All the sea-coast and inland navigable waters of North Carolina, with the Federal power. All the sea-coast and inland navigable waters of North Carolina, with the exception of Wilmington, are held by our government. Considerable Union feeling has been discovered in that State, and our armies have been recruited by the voluntary enlistment of her citizens. Charleston is nottaken, but the sea coast, embracing those islands where the celebrated Sea Island cotton is raised, with many thousands of her oppressed population, are in our power; and the vast net work of rivers and channels are traversed by our gunboats. A Kingdom by the Fireside.

I am a king in my own domain,
And my little wife is queen;
And jointly over our realms we reignA royal couple I ween.

As if work for him was bliss.

I am the king and the tiller, too-My farm is my proud domain; And the will to dare, and the strength to do, Are the sceptres of my reign.

At my touch the teeming earth yields up
Her wealth for my feast and store;
The nectar of health brims high my cup,
My measure of bliss runs o'er.

Oh! ne'er was a happier realm I ween, Than ours 'neath the arching sky: And never a happier king and queen Than my little wife and I.

Well, indeed, had my comrade been, avenged. There remained of the Lightfoots only the daughters, for the old man was found stiff and pallid in his bed, and the saddles of his sons had all been emptied. These worthies had run the gauntlet of our pickets for the last time. We discovered their bridle-path on our return, whereby they had made perilous but frequent visits to the old homestead. The cripple had disappeared, and having vainly searched the dwelling, the barns, and the woods adjacent, we repaired young Virginian. The pole, curiously enough, resisted our efforts, and the body had apparently become wedged in the well. A Zouave having volunteered to descend, we Mailed let him gently into the pit, and directly he cried: "Pull up, for God's sake. Here are two men entangled in the water.'

The cripple had escaped a "drum-hea

[From the Philadelphia North American.] The Crossing at Fredericksburg.

These beautiful lines of Mr. Boker were sug

I lay in my tent at midday,
Too full of pain to die,
When I heard the voice of Burnside,
And an answering shout reply.

"O, comrade, open the curtain,
And see where our men our bound,
For my heart is still in my bosom
At that terrible, mirthful sound.

" And hark what the General orders, For I could not catch his words; And what means that hurry and move That clash of muskets and swords?

And the noise that vexes your fever, Is only our soldiers' cheers.'

"Where go they?" "Across the river."
"O, God, and must I lie still, While that drum and that measured trampling Move from me far down the hill?

" How many?" "I judge four hundred." "Who are they? I'll know to a man." And the Seventh Michigan.

"O, to go, but to go with my comrades! Tear the curtain away from the hook, For I'll see them march down to their glory, If I perish by the look!"

And the breeze was alive with laughter Till the boatman began to row.

Then the shore, where the rebels harbored,

The swarms of their bullets came.

In silence, how dread and solemn With courage, how grand and true! Steadily, steadily onward The line of the shallops drew.

Not a whisper! Each man was conscious He stood in the sight of death; So he bowed to the awful presence, And treasured his living breath.

'Twixt death in the air above them
And death in the waves below,
Through balls and grape and shrapnell
They moved—my God how slow!

Whose limbs with strength were rife, Was torn and crushed and shattered—

A helpless wreck for life. But yet the boats moved onward;

And the floating Stars above. So loud and near it sounded, I started at the shout,

As the keels grounded on the gravel,

And the eager men burst out.

Cheer after cheer we sent them, As only armies can— Cheers for old Massachusetts, Cheers for young Michigan!

Not a man was out of place. Then with levelled steel they hurled them Straight in the rebels' face.

"O! help me, help me, comrade! Stream up that smoking town.

And see the noisy workmen O'er the lengthening bridges run,
And the troops that swarm to cross them
When the rapid work be done.

For the old heat, or a new one,

If this is death. I care not!

Hear me, men, from rear to van!— he more cheer for Massachusetts, And one more for Michigan!" Geomee H. Boker.

MARGARET.

IN SIX CHAPTERS.

She was alone now! It was the day after the wedding; not much more than a year after the last burying. Margaret Woodford was quite alone now: the last of her kin, her own little sister, had left her yesterday, for a new one by one, at short intervals, for the church-

Yesterday had been a bustling day; this morning she was weary: it was no matter, she had nothing to do but rest-there was no one to work for, care for, think for; no one to scold or to caress; as it was to-day, so it would probably be through all the days of her life, and she was not old yet.

As Margaret sat in the sunny window of the little breakfast-parlor-the only small room in the old rambling house-the eyes that seemed to look at outward things were almost sightless, vison was drawn inward she thought she did wisely in striving to grow familiar with the future: we often fancy ourselves wisest when we are only saddest. least hopeful, least faithful, most foolish. The spring was fair and forward, and the more like one of early summer. The orchards that lay between the garden and the meadows were in bloom; in the copses, on the hillside, the larches had long been green, the silver poplars were in leaf; the sun glistened brightly on the still bare boughs and swelling buds of ash, beech, oak, and hazel, giving a winkling sheen to all wooded places. They were many. Some hundred years ago, there had been nothing but forest where fair meadows now sloped towards the river, and on the uplands where now lay the harvest-fields. Groups of noble trees, towering here and there above dense underwood, testified to what had been. The shallow spot in the river was still called the Wood Ford, though the woodman's axe had laid it open to the sun fifty years before. Spring at Sunny-slope was rich in wild-flowers; primroses studded every bank, the ridges in every steep violets; cowslips, in close neighborhood, nodded to each other in the fields, of which the butter-cups had not yet taken possession; wood anemones, wild hyacinths, golden kingcups, and the early purple orehis, clustered in every dell and dingle.

The scene overlooked by the window in which Miss Woodford sat was lovely, and of a Sabbath-like quietness. None of its sweetness, or beauty, was in the face that gazed upon it: an expression too sullen and heavy to be simply mournful; an ashen sallowness of complexion, telling of "sad and stagnant black to be merely cast by long dark lashes, made the face absolutely plain, in spite of its delicate features. The Manor House crowned a gentle emience, over-looking valley, wood, and water; the church stood close beside it. The only sounds that reached Miss Woodford. save the singing of birds and of the brook hurrying to the river, freighted with snowwhite and pinky petals from the orchard. were from the Great Farm, half a mile distant. But next morning, a letter from Clara lay on the breakfast-table. It breathed the very breath of happiness, and yet many a pretty, tender phrase betrayed how the young wife's for her as a mother and sister in one.

Medical Superstitions.—The Death Blow to Delusion.—No profession or pursuit has been so obscure and disgraced by superstition, as the practice of medicine. Pope Adrian, by the advice of his physicians, wore the powder of dried toads suspended from his neck in a bag, as a protection against pestilence; and during the great plague of London, in the reign of Charles the Second, amulets of arsenic and quills filled with quicksilery were worn in the same way, as a safeguard against that featful scourge. Such were the medical prescriptions of some three centuries ago!—What are they now? Certainly in many cases not so innocuous. The corrosive minerals that were then hung barmlessly over the stomach, are now forced into it, to the imminent peril of health and life. Fortunately, however, we are not utterly abandoned to the tender mercies of the mineral mongers. Professor Holloway, the enlightened Samaritan of the nineteenth century, has furnished the world with two vegetable remedies, sufficient for the cure of all the diseases which afflict the internal organs, the nerves, the muscles and the fleshy übre. His Pills and Ointment are at once curative and conservative. They sustain the constitution and the vital strength of the body, while they break up the very sources of disease. Fever and ague, bilious remittents, and all disturbances of the organs of digestion, give way under the action of the pills, with wonderful uniformity; and maladies that affect the skin are relieved with no less certainty by the ointment. Thanks to the enterprise and energy of their great inventor, these remedies are not confined to a nation or a continent. To use the words of Shakspeare, the field of their usefulness is "broad and general as the vital air," and includes both hemispheres.—N. usefulness is "broad and general as the vital air," and includes both hemispheres.—N.

DR. SWEETS INFALLIBLE LINIMENT is prepared from the recipe of Dr. Stephen Sweet, of Connecticut, the great bone setter, and has been used in his practice for the last twenty years with the most astonishing success. As an external remedy it is without a rival, and will alleviate pain more speedily than any other preparation. For all Rheumatic and Nervous Disorders it is truly infallible and as a curative for Sores, Wounds, Sprains, Bruises, &c., its soothing, healing and powerful strengthening properties, excite the just wonder and astonishment of all who have ever given it a trial. Over four hundred certificates of remarkable curse, performed by it within the last two years, attest the fact. See advertisement.

Poetry.

A Ballad of Nantucket.

BY T. B. ALDRICH.

"Where go you, pretty Maggie, Where go you in the rain?" "I go to ask the sailors Who sailed the Spanish main,

If they have seen my Willie,
If he'll come back to me—
It is so sad to have him
A sailing on the sea!"

"O Maggie, pretty Maggie, Turn back to yonder town; Your Willie's in the ocean, A hundred fathoms down!

His hair is turned to sea kelp, His eyes are changed to stones, And twice two years have knitted The coral round his bones!

But Maggie never heeded,
For mournfully said she;
"It is so sad to have him
A sailing on the sea!"

The bells of old Nantucket.

And prayed and preached again— But she had gone to Willie Across the Spanish main!

REV. DR. STEBBINS' FESTIVAL POEM.

We are at length, through the courtesy o the author, after solicitation, enabled to lay before our readers this exceedingly interest ing and excellent Poem. Its many fine points will be apparent to all, and its adaptedness to the occasion which called it forth cannot be overlooked. Every soldier who is permitted to peruse it, will feel its depth and will see mirrored before him scenes which he has passed through, or seen enacted, often Prologue.

THE INVITATION. 'Tis but a day or two ago, or more,
A pleasant maiden came unto my door,
Of flaxen hair and bright blue eye,
And gave me a gilt edged letter to read,
Which naively said, that in truth and in deed,
There was to be a fair, and I,—

Why, I must be there to make a speech,
Of words to encourage all and each,
To inspirit and stir the soul
Of those who would come, with right good will,
From Button End, and from Duren's Hill,
Aud of Woburn, from either pole.

THE PREPARATION.

"A speech! a speech!" said I, then, to my self,
As my eye glanced along on every shelf
Of my library, to find Webster the great,
Who would start me a speech on matters o

atate.

I walked my study with rapid strides,
Beating my breast and beating my sides;
Shaking my fists and waving my hand,
As if giving orders to all the land.
I apostrophized thunder and lightning an But naught of a speech nor of anything came.

The star spangled banner I boldly unrolled, And in language of flame I addressed every I turned it up this way, I turned it down that,

It inspired no more than a stove-pipe hat. In a frenzy of madness I tore round my

And thus ran the lines of my "simple, sad" lay.

THE ANGEL OF THE BATTLE FIELD. The wounded soldier on the sod,
By swift Antietam lay,
With mangled limbs and parched lips,
All through the battle day.

The cannon thundered o'er the field, The soil with shell was torn, And, all besprinkled with the earth, He lay till dewy morn.

The advancing hosts pressed fiercely on, The charging squadrons passed, id, crushed beneath their iron hoofs, His blood was wasting fast.

Firm clenched within his strong, right hand, He held his rifle true; And in his left he grasped, as firm, A little case of blue.

Under its lid his eye was fixed,—
Glassy and dim that eye,—
And not the roar of booming guns,
Or hurrying passers-by,

Did once allure his fixed gaze, From that dear loving face. Which beamed on him in holy love, As when he took his place

In those long ranks, and left his home To meet the foc or death, or both, and struggled to conceal the sigh Upon his manly breath.

His pulse was low, his heart was faint, His lips were turning white As marble, or the fresh fallen snow On lofty mountain height.

And sometimes a low murmur seemed And sometimes a low miss tongue,

And his lips moved, as if he called a name,

Or answered when one sung.

And then his glassy eye aglow became,
As on the pictured face,
A glory gathered to his eye, and smile:
Again life ebbed space!

His life must filter out at last, From that great gaping wound, And his dear heart's blood, manly, strong, Enrich the accursed ground!

Shorter and shorter grows his breath, More and more dim his eye; More and more dim his eye; lust he, O! must he, noble one, For lack of succor, die?

Can there no help be found, or care For this heroic man,

Vho charged the foe, and made him reel,

Did all that mortal can? Lo !- see, an angel, in a woman's form,

Amid the battle smoke, Amid the shricks and iron hail, And gleaming sabre's stroke !

A basket's on her weary arm, Her hands a napkin hold, She sees and seeks our fallen brave, Wasting, gasping,cold! She kneels hearde his manly form Staunches the ghastly wound; Then low she bends her listening ear

To catch a breath, a sound. His sinking eyes turn on her face : The marble lips---they move!
ad "Mother!" trembles on his tongue

Deathless a mother's love ! For hanging on the verge of death, Whose name should one recall Of woman, if not hers whose name Is dearest name of all?

Gently she raised his fainting head, Parted his matted hair,
Spake her soft words to his dull ear,
Offered her trustful prayer;

While her hot temples, throbbing, red, Her burning brow aglow, oftly the waiting angels fan With glistering wings of snow.

Then gently with her napkin white She wipes—divine her task—
From off his forehead great sweat drops,
Then takes her cordial tlask.

And as she puts its lips to his as white, And wets them with its life, His heart grows warm, his eyes grow bright, He asks, "How goes the strife?"

She lays the napkin by her side, Her flask sets plain in sight,
And lo! upon them both was writ,
In letters large and bright,

" From Woburn, to the heroes brave, " Fathers and brothers dear,
And sons, who bleed the land to save,
Nor death nor danger fear.

For the Middlesex Journal. The funeral of Benj. C. Sanborn, who was a member of Co. D, 22d Mass. Regt., was very largely attended at the Bethesda Church on Wednesday afternoon. The Pastor, Rev. Mr. Wilcox, delivered a short but pertinent address. The singing was conducted by Mr. P. E. Bancroft, of Woburn. F. J. Bancroft, organist, handled the instrument very skillfully. This is the second son of Mr. Norris Sanborn who has been brought home from the war and buried with military honors. Rev. Mr. Barrows delivered his seventh annual sermon last Sabbath afternoon, in which he stated, if I remember rightly, that 89 families, who were here during the first year of his ministry, as connected with his congregation, are now gone, while more than WATCH-SPRING SKIRTS. that number have supplied their places; that the number of families now was 185, all of which he had visited during the past year, and that he had attended during these seven years, 119 funerals.

Mr. Senator Saulsbury having humbly apologized to the Senate for his drunken and disorderly conduct, the resolution for his expulsion from that body has been dropped, and the distinguished gentleman still acts as the representative of the State of Delaware. Senator will serve a useful purpose in the Senate hereafter, much in the same manner as the exceedingly intoxicated person to whom the pledge was presented at a country temperance meeting. THE SOLDIER'S TRUE FRIEND. ALWAYS READY. Holloway's Ointment.

Long marches, sore and stiff joints, blistered and inflamed feet, all these the coldier must endure. MOTHERS, IEBMEMBERITHIS, when your sons are grasping their muskets to meet dauger think what relief a single pot of this ALL HEALING & COOLING Salve will give to the one you love when far nway from home and friends. If hardens and makes tough the feet so that they can endure great fatigue. It soothes and relieves the inflamed and stiffened Joints, leaving them supple, strong and vigorous while for Sabre Cuts and Gunshot Wounds It stands unequalled, removing and preventing every restige of inflamation and gently drawing the edges together, it quickly and completely heals the most trightful wounds. Wives & Sisters of our Volunteers.

You cannot put into the Knapsacks of your Has bands and Brothers, a more vaulable or more ne-cessary gift than a supply of this Extraordinary Military Salve. The lonely sentry, walking his rounds at night, exposed to drenching rains and chill night air, is often soized with most VIOLENT PAINS, COUGH and SUFFOCATING HOARSNESS, first symptoms of QUICK CONSUMPTION, but if supplied with HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and HOLLOWAY'S OINTHENT, all danger is averted, a few Pills taken night and morning, and the Ointment briskly rabbed twice a day over the throat and cheek will remove the SEVEREST PAINS and stop the most distressing or DANGEROUS COUGH.—Therefore we say to the whole Army.

Soldiers Attention!! See to your own health, do not trust to the Army upplies although most valuable. These PHLES and OINTMENT have been thoroughly tested, hey are the only remedies used in the European Samps and Barracks, for over forty years Doctor Holloway has supplied all the Armies in Europe, and during the CRIMEAN CAMPAIGN he eabilshed a depot at Balaclava, for the exclusive also of these GREAT REMEDIES, many a time his special Agent there has sold over a ton in veight of the Olutment in a single day. God Save the Union.

BY C. G. DUNN.

God save the Union of the States!
And brighter make those stars which shone
Around the hallow'd glory day
Of Freedom's birth at Lexington.
For all the blood which has been shed—
For all the patriotic dead—
Por all the hearts that for us bled—
O, save the Union of the States!

God save the Union! by it stand
Ye true men who revere its laws;
And, O, remember Washington,
Who crushed oppression's hated cause,
Be faithful to those men who gave
To Freedom life—to Wrong a grave!—
Be faithful east if we would save Be faithful now if ye would save The sacred Union of the States.

God save the Union! by it stand Ye men whose love is Union's might— Ye men whose hearts and hands uphold The flag of the United States?

SNOWBALLING IN THE ARMY .- A letter from the 26th New Jersey regiment, dated the 25th ult., states that they were at Camp Fair view, and had just been defeated in a snow-ball contest with a Vermont regiment. About 1000 men were engaged-400 Jerseymen against 600 Vermonters. Before enterng on the engagement, skirmishers were thrown out on both sides, and the conflict began with colors flying and the band playing Rory O'More, Colonel Morrison gallantly led his men, ordering them to "charge." "close up en masse," &c., and for some tip the issue was doubtful, the air being filled with the flying balls, and each side cheering lustily. The line of the 26th at last wavered, and though the reserves were brought up they were of no avail. Colonel Morrison and other officers were taken prisoners, and embankment in the rear of the 26th was captured, and the balls prepared for the defence were used against them. The colors of the Sam's house. 26th were also taken, and their headquarters seized by the victorious and jubilant Ver monters, amidst deafening cheers. The priseners were subsequently released.

Life's Answer.

I know not if the dark or bright Shall be my lot:
If that wherein my hopes delight
Be best, or not.

It may be mine to drag for years
Toil's heavy chain:
Or day and night my meat be tears
On bed of pain.

Dear faces may surround my heart With smiles and glee: Or I may dwell alone, and mirth Be strange to me.

My bark is wafted to the strand
By breath divine:
And on the helm there rests a hand
Other than mine.

One who has known in storms to sail I have on board:
Above the raving of the gale
I hear my Lord.

He holds me when the billows smite, I shall not fall; f sharp, 'tis short; if long, 'tis light; He tempers all,

Safe to the land -- safe to the land, nd then with Him go hand in hand Far into bliss.

During most of our passage from the Fortress, the weather was sunny and summer-like. We had not been out three days, ere overcoats became a superfluity, till, about a week after, a cold storm in PHYSICIANS, SURGEONS the Gulf of Mexico made them again necessary. While in the Atlantic, some little excitement was one afternoon produced by the discovery of a smoke-stack in the distance, and gradually the hull of a large steamer be came visible, bearing down upon us, with the apparent intention of hailing our craft.— While the probability of an intimate acquaintseriously discussed, the steamer slightly alseriously discussed, the steamer slightly altered her course and passed away a mile or two astern, to the relief of many, and the disappointment of some, I doubt not. TWO PINTS FOR HUSBANDS

1. A married man presented himself, trembling and sorrowful, at the gates of paradise. He had heard so often of his faults and short comings while upon earth, that he believed in them devotedly, and had no hope of being admitted to the habitations of the blessed. One wife, he had been repeatedly informed, was a blessing far beyond his merits while in the flesh; how then, could be hope for the smiles of seventy houries. But the prophet, when he presented himself at the gates of heaven, to his great surprise greeted him with a smile o meffable compassion. . Pass on, poor martyr," said Mohammed. "You have been indeed a great sinner, but you have suffered enough upon the earth, so be of good cheer, for you will not meet your wife here."

A man who had hitherto crept up to heaven, now stood up confidently and presented himself to the prophet, upon the ground that twice married. "Nay," said the prophet, sigrily, "paradise is no place his majesty did not care to remember; he

ck consulted a magician of great reputation who lived in his dominions. The magician, a worthy gentleman who flourished in much rersonal comfort upon popular opinion, remost flowery language his imagination could invent. Having listened to his majesty's ailments with profound attention, the magician at length informed the king, that if he could succeed in obtaining the shirt of a happy man he had only to put on the precious garment to be cured immediately of his maladv, and so long as he wore it he would

The realms of the monarch were wide, his fleets were supreme upon the seas. His ury was full to overflowing, and his subjects were loyal and obedient. But whenever he ate a bowl of cream, or a dozen skewers o kabobs, or a few water-melons, he had suff that he could not consider himself happy : so The Persians have been renowned as story- it was obvious that his majesty himself had no shirt is his wardrobe which would answer

He has no end of money" (his majesty might mean many things), "and he has just built himself a palace fairer than the British Embassy. Whose dog is he that he should not be happy?" So the king sent for the prime minister and asked him at once for his shirt. The statesman, glad to oblige his master on such easy terms, and slyly resolwhenever occasion should offer to indemnify himself, immediately sent the king the very best shirt in his wardrobe. It was made of the finest and lightest silk, thin as a spider's web, and beautifully embroidered; but wonderful as it appeared to his majesty, he sufputting it on ; and, far worse, he felt a tightness about the neck as of a person apprehensive of being bowstrung, or actually unnever remembered to have felt since he had hundred and ten brothers after his father's

The Old Church-Bell's Lament.

"Bimm! boom!" said an old church bell, "Bimm! boom!" said an oid church bel As swiftly I hurried by;
"Bimm! boom! I've something to tell— Pause, list to my lonely sigh."
The night was cold, the air was chill, But so mournfully fell the tone It seemed my very soul to thrill, And I paused as the bell went on.

"Bimm! boom! I have heard strange things.
Come forth from the lips of men,
And ceaselessly my old tongue swings
As I think them o'er again:
'Twas yesternight, in the pale moonlight,
That a wary plan was told
To tear me down from my lofty height,
For the church was growing old.

"Bimm! boom! I heard them say
That the building was too small
For those who wished to come and pray
To the mighty God of all;
But I looked down and saw all around Full many a vacant pew.

Thought I, they want but a wider ground
To indulge the wealthy few.

"Then they said the church had rusty grown
'Neath the wearing hand of Time,
And no architectural beauty shone
In the turret where I chime.
The pews were too low, the pulpit too high
For the listening flock to hear;
But I felt that the cause was a sleepy eye
And an inattentive ear.

voice—
'Yes, yes! let us tear it down;
Every stone and timber, joint and joist
Will we level with the ground,
And in its place a structure grand
Shall the hand of Fashion rear.'
Alas! that Fashion e'er should stand
'Twixt God and his creatures here.

"Bimm! boom! In this turret high For a century I've swung,
And tolled the years as they hastened by
With the stroke of my iron tongue.
I've watched the battle beneath me here— And I've rung to the conqueror's heart good

And tolled when his work was done !

"I've rung with joy at the infant's birth,
I've watched his course to fame,

Be true to thy country; O, guard well the flag Betrue to thy country; O, guard well the flag Which for long years hath waved o'er you; Unfur! its bright colors, proclaim it your king, And show to the world that you're true. Betrue to thy country; not long may you stay, But O! while there's life in your heart, With courage undamnted, with vigor press on— Be foremost to act well your part.

Be foremost to act well your part.

Be true to thy county; the bravest may fail,—
The fearful, most surely they will;
Be up to the standard, thy country's, to save,—
Then on with a hearty good will.
Be true to thy country: disgrace not thy name
So nobly and gallantly won,
Deep troubles may gather, but hope for the best,
Thy name is thy friend—Richardson.

Be true to thy country; one comrade lies low.
Down, down, 'neath the deep, dark blue wave;
On! on! and revenge him, he gave up his life
Your country's best emblem to save.
Yes, on and revenge him; in silence he lies,
No more will he list to your call,
But he bids you be brace, your country to save,
And listen to Liberty's call.

Betrue to thy country; true hearts are still here,
And daily will pray you God speed;
We honor your courage, we prize your brave men,
And we'll help in the hour of need.
Betrue to thy country; then when you return
"Mid banners and deafening huzzas,
In triumph will meet you, the bravest of brave,
Brave, noble, "Richardson Light Guards."

THE STOCK OF GOLD .- The New York Commercial Advertiser finds that estimates of the amount of gold held in this country vary by about half a million of dollars. The Commercial therefore inquires why this matter should not be at least approximately settled, by requiring statements of the amount of coin and bullion held by individuals as well as corporations, at the next census.

"There is no serious obstacle in the way the compared of the control of the any more than in taking a census of the sheep and oxen in the country. Let us have the figures in 1870, and put an end to these wild guesses forever."

NEW JERSEY.—It is suggested that the Government punish this State for the disloyal peace resolutions which lately passed its legislature, by ordering that when our soldiers return home not one of them shall take the Camden and Amboy Railroad. As New Jersey depends on this road for the expenses of its government, and has accordingly often been irreverently called the "State of Camden and Amboy," the suggestion is worthy of consideration.
